AUGUSTALIA

Augustalia (pronunciation: aw-guhst-ahl-yuh) was born in July 2009 when singer/songwriter Hannah O'Reilly made musical love-babies with Adrian Michalski (lead guitar), Gary Anderson (bass) and Steve 'Quincy' Galbraith (drums).

With their unique blend of noir rock and alt-country cabaret, and tackling subjects from frilly knickers to serial killers, and from slapping to salvation, Augustalia will smack you across the face and then lull you back to loving them.

Augustalia released their debut EP 'It's Never Too Late To Ask For Your Knickers Back' to rave reviews in November 2010, garnering media attention from as far away as LA and Canada. On the back of this Augustalia are due to tour internationally in France, Canada, and Ireland, as well as making festival appearances in the UK in 2011. Their EP, including the first single 'Foolish' is available on online at Amazon, CD baby, Rhapsody, iTunes etc.

*"With their marriage of musicianship and mischief, they are cast-iron originals on the Edinburgh music scene and deserve to get their stuff heard well beyond the EH postcode zone" – Edinburgh
Spotlight, 2010*

"What a stunning voice... really unique and hits you between the eyes" - Eddie Raynor (Split Enz)

'One of the stars of the show' – Leonard Harper-Gow, Rowchester Festival Organiser, 2010.

*'A perfect marriage of melody and lyrics....a true antidote to the utter mediocrity of pop idol et al'
– Paul Tasker, Celtic Music Radio, 2010.*
